An amusing scene of "Bataille des Dames' was enacted this morning in the Police Court. Mrs. Eddle Jones was charged with having used profane and eased had been ill for a long time past. vulgar language to three pretty little part-Hawaijan damsels last Sunday afternoon on Nauanu street.

Defendant conducted her own case and all went well until the last of the three witnesses for the prosecution testified on the stand that Mrs. Joues had said a naughty word and had spit at them. Mrs. Jones contradicted and was answered by one of the girls sitting on a bench in the room. Immedipon returning from the Mainland she ately a heated argument arose and several police officers and attorneys began mary for girls where she remained looking for shelter against possible hat pins and other missies. "I say you spat at me!" "You can't get up in court and say I pat at you!"

"Of course you did!" "You lle!"

In valu did court officer Renear pound the table for order but finalls the disturbance was quelled. Judge Wilcox scented family troubles and on questioning, found his surmise to be correct. The defendant was reprimanded and discharged.
